FUND REACHES 30 PER CENT MARK — The Pickaway County Community Fund, in full swing here, reached almost one third of its goal today. The fund is based on one major industry and a few business firms that have reported contributions toward this year's objective of $34,744. Applying the red paint to the feather is Charles Alton, representing the Junior Chamber of Commerce which has assumed the task of keeping the sign chart current. Looking on is Mrs. Clara Burton, director of the fund's American Hotel headquarters. Fund activity this week is centered on the residential campaign.

3 Policemen Wounded as Mob Protests

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—A shotgun blast fired from the darkness early today wounded three St. Louis County police officers who were trying to disperse an unruly, excited crowd of some 300 persons in suburban Kinloch. A civilian was wounded.

The crowd was protesting the killing Sunday of a man by a Kinloch policeman.

Flareups of violence have been occurring ever since the shooting in the predominantly Negro community of 8,500. Both the man killed and the policeman were Negroes.

Fires were set Monday night and early today in several vacant buildings, a school, and a new home being built by the Kinloch chief of police as the mob got out of hand.

Police questioned more than 70 persons and gave three lie detector tests following the shooting. All were released.

A blaze in the home of Kinloch Chief Roosevelt Hoskins was extinguished before it caused serious damage.

But a five-room frame wing of Dunbar grade school burned out and there was no school today for 1,000 children.

None of the three wounded officers, patrolmen Billy Rushing, 33, Hugh Hodges, 26, and Kenneth Armstead 29, was critically injured. Rushing returned to duty. The others remained in County Hospital under observation. All are white.

Kinloch Mayor Clarence Lee said "growing unrest and even hatred" because of the killing of Darnell Dorch, 20, by a Kinloch patrolman, Israel Mason, 74, touched off the violence.

Mason, suspended pending a coroner's investigation, said he was trying to subdue Dorch and his gun went off accidentally. The officer said Dorch had refused to accept a careless driving warrant.

The officers who were wounded had been summoned to aid the seven-man Kinloch force in dispersing a mob that gathered at a drive-in cafe near the Kinloch police station.

At times the mob chanted: "We want Mason!"

Ohio Sergeant Listed As Air Crash Victim

WASHINGTON (AP)—Staff Sgt. Richard M. Miskimen, whose mother, Mrs. Meriam Y. Miskimen lives in New Philadelphia, Ohio, has been identified as among those killed in the ditching of a Flying Tiger airline plane in the Atlantic Ocean Sunday.

Pvt. Michael Murray of Youngstown is among the survivors, the Defense Department has announced.

Mariner Still Rocketing OK On Journey to Planet Venus

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Two months from today, if all goes well, U.S. space scientists will chalk up another first—talking with a spacecraft over the longest distance yet.

On Nov. 25 the Venus-bound Mariner 2 will pass the 22½-million mile mark, the point at which the now-silent sun satellite Pioneer 5, launched March 3, 1959, stopped sending radio signals back to the earth.

Farm Bill Faces Vote In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The compromise farm aid bill faces a tight Senate test today after its five-vote victory in the House last week.

The Senate agreed to bring it to a vote this afternoon after five hours of debate.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, assistant Democratic leader, said he expects the administration measure will be approved, but perhaps by only eight votes.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., spearheading forces fighting the bill, said he had learned the administration leaders were having trouble holding ranks. He added: "This will be a close vote—very close."

Aiken said the opponents' aim was to "kill this monstrosity" or to pry something better from the Senate-House Conference Committee which drafted its terms.

Senate approval would send the bill to the White House for apparently certain signing into law. The bill would provide a combination of payments to wheat and feed grain growers in exchange for voluntarily reducing their planted acreage in 1963.

It would arm the secretary of agriculture, however, with far wider powers to fix price support levels in 1964 and subsequent years to combat the production of surpluses.

The 1963 provisions would provide essentially for a one-year extension of existing emergency wheat and feed grain programs with this major change: Direct 13 cents a bushel subsidy payments would be part of the price support.

Taylor To Plead For Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor is expected to enter a plea today for Senate restoration of the funds chopped by the House for the administration's foreign aid money bill.

The Senate Appropriations Committee, which wound up its hearings on the measure last Friday, has re-opened them to hear Taylor's secret testimony.

The four-star general, who is scheduled to take over as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff next week, has just returned from a trip to South Viet Nam, Thailand and other Southeast Asian countries.

The general previously described the cuts in foreign aid as dangerous to U.S. security.

Mariner 2, launched last Aug. 27, is scheduled to fly within 9,000 miles of Venus on Dec. 14. At that time it will be 36 million miles from earth.

How is it possible to talk over such distances—especially since scientists sometime have trouble communicating between points on earth just a few thousand miles apart.

The answer is two-fold.

First, the earth-to-earth signals have to travel most of the way through atmospheric interference. Earth-to-space signals are above the atmosphere after traveling less than 20 miles.

Second, Mariner 2 scientists are using incredibly powerful radios.

John Thatcher, research engineer at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory where Mariner 2 was made, draws these parallels:

The television antenna on your roof weighs perhaps 20 pounds. Mariner 2 scientists use dish-shaped antennas 85 feet in diameter and weighing over 200 tons.

There are three of them, at Goldstone, Calif., 200 miles northeast of Los Angeles, at Johannesburg, South Africa, and at Woomera, Australia. One of them always has the spacecraft in direct "sight."

Your television antenna probably cost between $5 and $50.

Each of the three stations tracking Mariner 2 cost about $5 million.

The antennas at Goldstone, Johannesburg and Woomera can amplify the Mariner 2's signals 32,000 times.

At 1 a.m. today Mariner 2 was 4,647,576 miles distant, sending back signals that say all its instruments are operating properly.

On Dec. 14 earth scientists will send signals starting a new set of instruments to measure electronically Venus' temperature, atmospheric content and magnetic field.

These instruments will operate for only 30 minutes, but it will take 56 hours to transmit all their information back to earth in code.

By that time Mariner will be far beyond Venus and well on its way in a wide orbit around the sun.

U.S. Court Orders End To Ole Miss Negro Ban

House Approves Reserve Callup

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House has approved and sent to President Kennedy a measure authorizing him to muster 150,000 Reserves if he thinks they are needed as cold war trouble-shooters.

The House shouted down several amendments and passed it by a 342-13 roll call vote Monday after several Republicans questioned the measure's worth.

"This legislation will have as much impact on Mr. Khrushchev as a single leaf falling in a mighty forest," protested Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich.

He urged that the President be allowed to call up a million men, which he said would "give him a fist that he could really shake at Mr. Khrushchev."

Rep. Bruce Alger, R-Tex., noted that Kennedy has admonished him said "the grave danger is not against rash talk over Cuba, but he said 'the grave danger is not rash talk but indecisiveness and lack of policy. All we need is some guts and a firm leader.'"

On the final tally 131 Republicans joined 211 Democrats in support of the bill. Against it were 2 Democrats and 11 Republicans.

The Senate approved the Reserve authority bill unanimously on Sept. 13.

In opening debate, Rep. Carl Vinson, D-Ga., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, told the House that Cuba and Berlin, plus dangerous situations in Laos and South Vietnam and along the coast of China justified giving Kennedy the power he requested to call up the Reserves.

Kennedy said he wanted the authority to help deal with less than all-out emergencies while Congress is in adjournment.

By law, Kennedy has the power to call up a million Ready Reservists by declaring a national emergency.

Cosmic Ray Checkup Set

Astronaut Slated To Be Busy in Orbit

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. will be taking pictures of the earth, hunting rare types of cosmic rays, and checking on how much the earth's atmosphere reduces light during his scheduled six-orbit flight Oct. 3.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration Manned Spacecraft Center here said Monday Schirra will devote a considerable amount of time to making color photographs of the earth for NASA's Goddard (Md.) Space Flight Center.

"Goddard scientists are interested in color photography of folded mountains (a type of range), fault zones, volcanic fields, meteor impacts and glaciers," NASA officials said.

The cosmic ray experiment will require no effort from Schirra. Scientists will attach packs of sensitive emulsions to each side of the flight couch. It is hoped certain rays about which little is known will strike the packs and leave impressions.

The experiment with light will be an effort to determine how much light filters through the earth's atmosphere and how well the astronaut can see at night.

Three high-intensity flares will be lighted at Woomera, Australia, and electric lamps of three million candlepower will be displayed at Durbani, South Africa. Schirra will have a photometer to measure the intensity of the light he sees.

Schirra will handle most of the light sighting and photographic assignments during his second through fifth orbits when he is not expected to be too busy controlling his ship, NASA officials said.

Columbusite Admits Shooting Woman

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A 32-year-old Columbus man has been charged with first-degree murder in the fatal shooting of Barbara Ann Love, 26, Monday night in her apartment.

Police said Frank W. Hale, who identified himself as the woman's "ex-common law husband," walked into police headquarters and admitted killing the woman with a shotgun.

Hale told police that before the shooting he and the woman argued about his rights to see one of her five children. He said he stole the shotgun from a car Saturday night.

The Cuban Revolutionary Council appealed to refugees to take advantage of the program.

The council, largest of the anti-Castro groups, said arrangements for the special training school were completed after a conference Monday between its president, Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, and Pentagon officials in Washington.

The program is scheduled to be in full operation at a number of cities within two weeks. The recruiter's doors open today in Coral Gables, just outside this heartland of the refugee colony.

Last week the U.S. government estimated that 147,000 exiles from Fidel Castro's regime have registered in Miami and more are arriving at the rate of 1,600 to 1,800 a week.

Segregationist Governor Gets Federal Curbs

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals issued a sweeping restraining order today prohibiting Gov. Ross Barnett and a large number of county, city and other state officials from interfering with the registration of Negro James H. Meredith at the University of Mississippi.

In addition to Barnett, the order names Mississippi Atty. Gen. Joe T. Patterson, State Commissioner of Public Safety T. B. Birdsong, and district attorneys police chiefs and sheriffs which the court described as representative of their authority throughout the entire state.

The order was signed by three judges of the Appellate Court. They set a hearing for Friday in New Orleans.

The order was issued on the request of the U.S. Justice Department, which only Monday pressed a contempt charge against university officials, leading to the promise by officials that Meredith would be registered.

The promise of the officials, however, came in the face of counter-moves at Jackson by Barnett, who has sworn he will go to jail rather than see Meredith enrolled at Ole Miss.

The Appeals Court Monday gave the State College Board until 4 p.m., Central Standard time, today to let Meredith enroll.

Meredith planned to register in Jackson, where the board normally sits, rather than the campus at Oxford. This was part of the board's agreement with the court.

The 64-year-old governor of Mississippi, rather than see segregation knocked down at Ole Miss, took these actions:

1. He obtained a state court order forbidding university officials from enrolling Meredith and forbidding Meredith from enrolling.

2. He issued an executive order directing state police to arrest.

Once Around Roundtown

JACK CLARK, Williamsport, in an attempt to give away a 30-ton surplus Army tank has been confronted with another problem.

Now that transportation problems (all the way from Williamsport to Linden, N. J.) have supposedly been solved, the Harvan family, recipients of the gift, are beginning to worry about "what the neighbors will think and the huge toy in their yard."

According to Clark, it has been suggested the tank be donated to a Linden City Park as a gift from 12-year-old Robin Harvan. Clark was to hear from a Cleveland television station today as to further plans for moving the armored vehicle.

It has been suggested they might offer it to the city for a park fixture.

Meantime, there's also the problem of moving it from Ohio to New Jersey. The Ohio department of Highways says it has received no official request for help in such a move.

It had been reported earlier that a Cleveland radio station planned to move the tank under its own power to Linden. If such is the case, no highway permit has been requested.

Now, several obstacles seem to have arisen. There are reports that the Harvan family—Robin excepted—is entertaining some second thoughts about the liability such a backyard plaything would place upon them, the amount of space it would take up and what the neighbors might think.

Ditched Airliner's Passengers Hailed

LONDON (AP)—American servicemen and their dependents calmly went through a "ditching drill" as their Flying Tiger airliner plunged into the stormy Atlantic.

The heroic story of courage in the last fateful moments before the crash landing of the Super Constellation in darkness Sunday night was told today by some of the 48 survivors—44 men and four women.

Twelve of the 76 persons aboard the four-engine chartered airliner are known dead. Bodies of 10 men and two women were recovered.

Sixteen, including two children, are missing.

A U.S. Air Force spokesman said at noon: "There is little hope that any more survivors will be found unless a raft is remaining afloat somewhere."

The captain of the plane—described as a hero by other survivors—said his crew of eight and the 68 passengers were brave and magnificent when he told them he had to ditch.

There was no panic and this averted a greater loss of life.

Survivors aboard the Canadian aircraft carrier Bonaventure and the tiny Swiss freighter Celerina told of the last minutes as the plane dropped toward the tossing waves 500 miles west of Ireland.

"Ditching drill, advice and a running commentary were given to the passengers during those last few hideous moments before impact," a radio report from the Bonaventure said.

"This was believed to have been given by the navigator of the aircraft whose position reporting, incidentally, was proved excellent. As a result of this briefing, survivors and those bodies recovered were all wearing life jackets."

The crew of the Celerina risked death to rescue the survivors from rafts in the storm-tossed Atlantic. One crewman was reported injured.

A helicopter from the Canadian aircraft carrier made 13 trips Monday "under the most difficult conditions"—a radio message said—to land medical supplies, clothing and cigarettes on the Celerina.

"There is a doctor on board the Celerina, thought to be one of the survivors, and he has sufficient supplies to tend the injured until their arrival in Antwerp," the Bonaventure said.

The Canadian rescue ship said it recovered a life raft with the body of one of the plane's four stewardesses on it. She was not identified by name.

Two separate cost estimates for cleaning a ditch in Monroe Twp. was requested yesterday from the county's Board of Commissioners.

The request was made by Floyd Williams, one of about 20 property owners who have expressed desires to put the ditch in proper shape. The drainage area originates on Route 316 and extends slightly less than one mile to the Williams property.

Williams asked that one estimate be made on cost for cleaning alone. The other sought an estimate for cleaning, tiling and building a headwall as it would pertain to the stretch of ditch on the Williams land.

North American, Union OK Contract

LOS ANGELES (AP) — North American Aviation and the United Aerospace Workers have agreed on a new three-year contract affecting 35,000 employees in Los Angeles, Columbus, Ohio, and Neosho, Mo.

The contract, subject to ratification next Sunday by the union, calls for a vote of North American employees Oct. 19 on whether to approve a union shop.

If two thirds of those voting fail to approve a union shop, the maintenance-of-membership system will continue.

In a union shop, all employees must join the union. In maintenance-of-membership those who are union members will keep that status but others can join or not.

Segregationist Governor Gets Federal Curbs

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals issued a sweeping restraining order today prohibiting Gov. Ross Barnett and a large number of county, city and other state officials from interfering with the registration of Negro James H. Meredith at the University of Mississippi.

In addition to Barnett, the order names Mississippi Atty. Gen. Joe T. Patterson, State Commissioner of Public Safety T. B. Birdsong, and district attorneys police chiefs and sheriffs which the court described as representative of their authority throughout the entire state.

The order was signed by three judges of the Appellate Court. They set a hearing for Friday in New Orleans.

The order was issued on the request of the U.S. Justice Department, which only Monday pressed a contempt charge against university officials, leading to the promise by officials that Meredith would be registered.

The promise of the officials, however, came in the face of countermeasures at Jackson by Barnett, who has sworn he will go to jail rather than see Meredith enrolled at Ole Miss.

The Appeals Court Monday gave the State College Board until 4 p. m., Central Standard time, today to let Meredith enroll.

Meredith planned to register in Jackson, where the board normally sits, rather than the campus at Oxford. This was part of the board's agreement with the court.

The 64-year-old governor of Mississippi, rather than see segregation knocked down at Ole Miss, took these actions:

1. He obtained a state court order forbidding university officials from enrolling Meredith and forbidding Meredith from enrolling.

2. He issued an executive order directing state police to arrest (Continued on Page 2)

Cosmic Ray Checkup Set

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. will be taking pictures of the earth, hunting rare types of cosmic rays, and checking on how much the earth's atmosphere reduces light during his scheduled six-orbit flight Oct. 3.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration Manned Spacecraft Center here said Monday Schirra will devote a considerable amount of time to making color photographs of the earth for NASA's Goddard (Md.) Space Flight Center.

"Goddard scientists are interested in color photography of folded mountains (a type of range), fault zones, volcanic fields, meteor impacts and glaciers," NASA officials said.

The cosmic ray experiment will require no effort from Schirra. Scientists will attach packs of sensitive emulsions to each side of the flight couch. It is hoped certain rays about which little is known will strike the packs and leave impressions.

The experiment with light will be an effort to determine how much light filters through the earth's atmosphere and how well the astronaut can see at night.

Three high-intensity flares will be lighted at Woomera, Australia, and electric lamps of three million candlepower will be displayed at Durban, South Africa. Schirra will have a photometer to measure the intensity of the light he sees.

Schirra will handle most of the light sighting and photographic assignments during his second through fifth orbits when he is not expected to be too busy controlling his ship, NASA officials said.

The plan was set up, said the Pentagon, "in order to assist Cuban refugees in this country to maintain themselves and to employ usefully and further develop their skills and abilities by service in the armed forces."

The program is scheduled to be in full operation at a number of cities within two weeks. The recruiter's doors open today in Coral Gables, just outside this heartland of the refugee colony.

Last week the U.S. government estimated that 147,000 exiles from Fidel Castro's regime have registered in Miami and more are arriving at the rate of 1,600 to 1,800 a week.

The Cuban Revolutionary Council appealed to refugees to take advantage of the program.

The council, largest of the anti-Castro groups, said arrangements for the special training school were completed after a conference Monday between its president, Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, and Pentagon officials in Washington.

Boy's 30-Ton Tank Appears To Be Getting Nowhere Fast

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—That 30-ton surplus Army tank from an Ohio wrecking yard doesn't seem to be getting much closer to the backyard of the Linden, N.J., boy who wants it.

The youngster, Robin Harvan, wrote to President Kennedy on the chance the Army might have an old tank to spare. He was informed there was none to be had.

But Jack Clark, who operates an auto wrecking yard in Williamsport, Ohio, has a surplus tank he bought on a whim back in 1954. He offered it to the New Jersey youngster.

Now, several obstacles seem to have arisen. There are reports that the Harvan family — Robin excepted — is entertaining some second thoughts about the liability such a backyard plaything would place upon them, the amount of space it would take up and what the neighbors might think.

It has been suggested they might offer it to the city for a park fixture.

Meantime, there's also the problem of moving it from Ohio to New Jersey. The Ohio department of Highways says it has received no official request for help in such a move.

It had been reported earlier that a Cleveland radio station planned to move the tank under its own power to Linden. If such is the case, no highway permit has been requested.

Ditched Airliner's Passengers Hailed

LONDON (AP)—American servicemen and their dependents calmly went through a "ditching drill" as their Flying Tiger airliner plunged into the stormy Atlantic.

The heroic story of courage in the last fateful moments before the crash landing of the Super Constellation in darkness Sunday night was told today by some of the 48 survivors—44 men and four women.

Twelve of the 76 persons aboard the four-engine chartered airliner are known dead. Bodies of 10 men and two women were recovered.

Sixteen, including two children, are missing.

A U.S. Air Force spokesman said at noon: "There is little hope that any more survivors will be found unless a raft is remaining afloat somewhere."

The captain of the plane—described as a hero by other survivors—said his crew of eight and the 68 passengers were brave and magnificent when he told them he had to ditch.

There was no panic and this averted a greater loss of life.

Survivors aboard the Canadian aircraft carrier Bonaventure and the tiny Swiss freighter Celerina told of the last minutes as the plane dropped toward the tossing waves 500 miles west of Ireland.

"Ditching drill, advice and a running commentary were given to the passengers during those last few hideous moments before impact," a radio report from the Bonaventure said.

"This was believed to have been given by the navigator of the aircraft whose position reporting, incidentally, was proved excellent. As a result of this briefing, survivors and those bodies recovered were all wearing life jackets."

The crew of the Celerina risked death to rescue the survivors from rafts in the storm-tossed Atlantic. One crewman was reported injured.

A helicopter from the Canadian aircraft carrier made 13 trips Monday "under the most difficult conditions"—a radio message said—to land medical supplies, clothing and cigarettes on the Celerina.

"There is a doctor on board the Celerina, thought to be one of the survivors, and he has sufficient supplies to tend the injured until their arrival in Antwerp," the Bonaventure said.

The Canadian rescue ship said it recovered a life raft with the body of one of the plane's four stewardesses on it. She was not identified by name.

Two separate cost estimates for cleaning a ditch in Monroe Twp. was requested yesterday from the county's Board of Commissioners.

The request was made by Floyd Williams, one of about 20 property owners who have expressed desires to put the ditch in proper shape. The drainage area originates on Route 316 and extends slightly less than one mile to the Williams property.

Williams asked that one estimate be made on cost for cleaning alone. The other sought an estimate for cleaning, tiling and building a headwall as it would pertain to the stretch of ditch on the Williams land.

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP)—Just because Premier Khrushchev is a frustrated man, Berlin may become an American crisis before year's end.

That city is high in the consciousness of the Kennedy administration, particularly Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, who recently warned that the next few months may be dangerous ones.

"I would say that the crisis today in terms of military requirements and potential military operations is more severe than at any time since the actual combat operations of the Korean War," McNamara said.

Khrushchev's frustration comes from four years of demanding a peace settlement with Communist East Germany—Berlin lies 110 miles inside it—and four years of being stiff-armed by the West.

Twice in that time Khrushchev set a six-months' deadline for a settlement and twice abandoned it. But he has never abandoned his basic demand.

And, because he hasn't, there's a limit to how long he can go through this performance without looking like a straw man instead of the strong man he talks of being.

Earlier this month the Russians hinted they would accept still a further postponement—until after the American elections in November.

The reason, they suggested, was that the United States would be too occupied with its domestic problem until then to negotiate.

The kind of settlement Khrushchev had in mind would require:

1. Acknowledgment by the Western Allies of the legitimacy of the East German Communist regime, a Russian puppet.

2. Agreement that henceforth the East Germans would control the access routes—land and air—by which the West send men and supplies into Berlin.

That's the part of the Khrushchevian iceberg showing above the surface.

Equally deadly underwater was this:

1. For the West to acknowledge that the East German Communists were the legitimate rulers of East Germany would mean, for the West, abandoning the idea West and East Germany might some day be unified.

The idea that they could be united is strictly a Western political myth anyway. It may please this country's West German allies to think the now divided Germany may be pulled together again. But it's only realistic to understand that, since the Communists hold East Germany, they are never going to surrender it or take a chance on losing it.

2. Khrushchev and the East Germans want the Allies out of the access routes to East Germany.

But here again there is some frustration for him. If he turned over the access routes and the East Germans tried to shut out the West from Berlin, it might mean war.

But neither Khrushchev nor the rest of the Russians can want war over the German city. They've had enough grief from Germany for generations.

Therefore, if he signed a peace treaty with the East Germans, he'd either have to put restraints on them or chance a war with the West by restraints on Western access to Berlin.

It's an unhappy position for him and it has been for a long time. But he has to do something eventually.

So—he says if the West won't make a settlement with East Germany, he will sign a peace treaty with it, turning over control of the access routes to East Germany.

So—he says if the West won't make a settlement with East Germany, he will sign a peace treaty with it, turning over control of the access routes to East Germany.

But here again there is some frustration for him. If he turned over the access routes and the East Germans tried to shut out the West from Berlin, it might mean war.

But neither Khrushchev nor the rest of the Russians can want war over the German city. They've had enough grief from Germany for generations.

Therefore, if he signed a peace treaty with the East Germans, he'd either have to put restraints on them or chance a war with the West by restraints on Western access to Berlin.

Catholic College for Girls To Utilize $15 Million Plant

CINCINNATI (AP) — Mount St. Joseph On The Ohio, a Catholic Sisters of Charity college for girls, which developed from a small academy that was founded in 1829, will open for classes Thursday with a new $15 million plant made up of eight buildings on a 75-acre campus.

Much of the adjoining old college will provide increased room and facilities for the mother house of the Sisters of Charity.

Today, Mother Mary Omer, mother general of the order, and others showed off the new school to the press and other friends of the school.

The new college, started in 1960, represents one of the largest building programs ever undertaken by a private women's college in the United States.

It will have a capacity of 1,200 students.

Money to erect the buildings came from contributions from private individuals in all parts of the country.

The college is located west of Cincinnati and is atop a high hill, overlooking a broad sweep of the Ohio River and the Kentucky hills on the opposite shore.

The eight new buildings are of contemporary architecture. The exterior surfaces are brick with small amounts of light gray Indiana limestone and Virginia greenstone. Aluminum and glass has been used to accent the entrances stairs and special rooms.

The seven-story Seton Hall has accommodations for 610 resident students and also houses a social center, two recreation rooms, a coffee shop, dining room, post-office, sisters' facility residence and chapel.

Aquinas Hall houses a chapel and the priest faculty and chaplain's residence. A four-story library contains 125,000 volumes.

The gymnasium and natatorium include a 110 X 65 foot gym and a 28 X 75 foot pool. Tennis courts and an athletic field adjoin the building.

There is a 1,200-seat auditorium with a stage area 68 feet wide and 36 feet deep. A "little theater" seats 200 and includes seven music practice rooms.

Then there is the Mater Dei Chapel which seats 800. The interior design and decoration are the work of the faculty and art graduates of the college.

Three Carillon bells in the tower are dedicated to Jesus, Mary and St. Joseph. The bell tower and the cross rise 121 feet above the chapel floor.

The Sisters of Charity, founded in 1809, opened their first school here in 1829 when they started St. Peter's Academy and followed that with St. Mary's Academy. In 1853 the order replaced those schools with Mount St. Vincent Academy, a day and boarding school.

In 1906 the sisters opened a resident school for girls at the present site of the college and work covering the first two years of college was started at that time.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Just because Premier Khrushchev is a frustrated man, Berlin may become an American crisis before year's end.

That city is high in the consciousness of the Kennedy administration, particularly Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, who recently warned that the next few months may be dangerous ones.

"I would say that the crisis today in terms of military requirements and potential military operations is more severe than at any time since the actual combat operations of the Korean War," McNamara said.

Khrushchev's frustration comes from four years of demanding a peace settlement with Communist East Germany—Berlin lies 110 miles inside it—and four years of being stiff-armed by the West.

Twice in that time Khrushchev set a six-months' deadline for a settlement and twice abandoned it. But he has never abandoned his basic demand.

And, because he hasn't, there's a limit to how long he can go through this performance without looking like a straw man instead of the strong man he talks of being.

Earlier this month the Russians hinted they would accept still a further postponement—until after the American elections in November.

The reason, they suggested, was that the United States would be too occupied with its domestic problem until then to negotiate.

The kind of settlement Khrushchev had in mind would require:

1. Acknowledgment by the Western Allies of the legitimacy of the East German Communist regime, a Russian puppet.

2. Agreement that henceforth the East Germans would control

the access routes—land and air—by which the West send men and supplies into Berlin.

That's the part of the Khrushchevian iceberg showing above the surface.

Equally deadly underwater was this:

1. For the West to acknowledge that the East German Communists were the legitimate rulers of East Germany would mean, for the West, abandoning the idea West and East Germany might some day be unified.

The idea that they could be united is strictly a Western political myth anyway. It may please this country's West German allies to think the now divided Germany may be pulled together again. But it's only realistic to understand that, since the Communists hold East Germany, they are never going to surrender it or take a chance on losing it.

2. Khrushchev and the East Germans want the Allies out of their basic demand.

8 New National Bank Rules Coming

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—James J. Saxon, comptroller of the currency, announced today he will soon issue eight new regulations affecting the operations of national banks.

A number of the regulations will mirror recommendations made last week by Saxon's advisory committee on banking which called for wholesale changes in the regulation of the banking industry.

Saxon announced his first moves to carry out the committee's suggestions in an address to the convention here of the American Bankers Association.

Fertile Hunting Ground

Rep. Wright Patman of Texas has been gunning for tax-exempt foundations for a long time on the premise that many of the more than 45,000 such organizations now in existence were formed only as tax dodges and as such are creating an additional burden for the individual taxpayer.

One sidelight of the congressman's investigations into the foundations, as chairman of a special committee on small business, is the kid-glove treatment accorded them by the Internal Revenue Service.

Over a 10-year period, 50,000 returns were filed with the Treasury Department by the foundations claiming tax exemptions on various financial dealings. Less than one per cent of these — 5,300 — were audited by the IRS. Imagine the lowly individual taxpayer being treated with such disdain!

It wasn't that the audits which were made didn't produce results. Recommended added penalties and taxes amounted to $2.7 million. Assuming the returns which were audited were a true cross section of the total, nearly $3 billion could have been involved in due — but uncollected — taxes.

Foundations do not deserve all of the criticism leveled at them. They do serve many useful functions, and most of them stick reasonably close to the general areas of conduct envisioned by Congress when it laid down the rules governing them. But others, particularly some of the large behemoths which have entered into corporate control and creation, exert considerable influence over the business community through the non-competitive tool of tax exemption.

Regardless of the general merit of foundations, IRS might at least scrutinize more than one per cent of the returns claiming exemption from any taxes. The present field of evasion provided by IRS through default would seem to be a very fertile hunting ground.

Jumping to Some Conclusions

NEW YORK (AP)—Jumping to conclusions.

Ulcers are one price of foolish dreams held too long. Anybody who remains at 40 the same amount he had at 20 probably hasn't taken the trouble to grow up.

People should change their ambitions periodically just as they do the oil in their motor cars—if they are seeking the best performance in life.

A man who never is satisfied with the weather usually has something else that is secretly bothering him more.

You always hear the juiciest scandal from those who begin by saying, "I don't like to gossip but..."

The Good Lord gives pimples to adolescents to teach them humility; without pimples they'd be really unseparable.

If caviar sold for a dime a shovelful, half the people who now say they adore it would rather die than be caught eating it in public. It isn't common sense that put a crimp in the popularity of night clubs. People just don't have the stamina to make the long trip home to the suburbs after a night out on the town.

Nothing surprises a blind beggar more than a patron who takes a pencil from him after dropping a coin in his cup.

The most poetic utterance I ever heard by a child was made by a Welsh lad on a Sunday morning in London during wartime: "Oh, Mother, I saw my own true love in church today. And never spoke to her at all." It has haunted my mind for years.

Maxim for career women: Men rarely marry an office gal they borrow money from between paydays—but they sure do appreciate having her handy.

Anyone under 50 who won't eat corn on the cob in a restaurant is either a snob or suffers from an inferiority complex. If over 50, he may just lack confidence in his false teeth.

My idea of a real nonconformist is a banker who wears a blue shirt during business hours—but I never met one who had the courage.

The stingiest men are often those who carry their money in a billfold inside their coat. The most generous are those who carry it wadded up in their right hand pants pocket—where they can get at it faster.

Whenever I hear a wife brag that her husband brings her breakfast in bed before leaving for his job, I instinctively feel sorry for her—not for him. He's beyond pity.

Being good-humored in this life is something you have to learn as you go along. The proof: Nobody was ever born laughing.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP)—Faith in the basic health of the American dollar has been proclaimed from all sides — or almost all sides. And President Kennedy is about to get tariff bargaining powers with which he hopes further to strengthen the dollar.

Looking further ahead, Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon has promised other nations that when the United States starts running a surplus in its balance of payments, which it hasn't done for quite a few years now, it won't try to take back from them the gold they have been taking from the U.S. Treasury's stocks while this country was running a deficit.

This loss of gold in recent years to nations who have been getting more dollars from us than they have had need to pay back was a prime reason that some foreigners, particularly gold and currency speculators, have been casting doubt on the health of the American dollar.

At the meetings in Washington last week of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, all hands were busy assuring such speculators that their ideas were groundless, and that their speculations would boomerang.

To most Americans the health of the dollar is largely a matter of how far it will go in maintaining a high standard of living. The cost of living means more to them than international exchange rates, or even the flow of gold between the world's central banks.

But the two factors — the strength of the dollar in the market place at home and its strength in international exchange — react on each other.

Either a runaway rise in the cost of living which is most unlikely at this time, or a flight from the dollar abroad which is just as unlikely, could raise the specter of devaluation—that is a downgrading in the value of the dollar in relation to gold, to other currencies, or to goods and services.

Many Americans woke up to this possibility a couple of years ago when a short-lived run on the dollar abroad sent the price of gold soaring.

Now all hands are taking a calmer view. Americans realize that their position in foreign trade is good, with exports topping imports, and that this status can improve if the hopes riding on the freer trade program are realized.

Foreigners have been sharply reminded that the United States won't let its dollar be menaced, that if it should halt foreign aid, either economic or military, it would be running a surplus instead of a deficit.

If other nations share more of this burden of economic and military overseas spending, if world trade expands through agreements by the United States and European Common Market, and, importantly, if the United States keeps its own financial house in order by holding down Treasury deficits and building up its rate of economic growth, the health of the dollar will no longer be questioned.

That is what the money managers were saying in Washington.

To make sure of it, they were strengthening defenses not only of the dollar but of other Western principal financial nations can move quickly now to halt runs on the dollar or other currencies, to protect gold reserves, to discourage speculators.

But basic to the effectiveness of these measures is the economic strength of the United States and other key nations.

OUT IN NEW MEXICO they tell of a rancher who suddenly struck it rich and decided it was time his son learned some manners. The boy, tutored by a refugee from Harvard, got along famously with his new course in etiquette until the rancher decided to throw a big party in honor of his boy.

Decorators came all the way from Dallas to fix up the ranchhouse and all the guests took their dinner coats out of the mothballs. Everything went well until one guest made an insulting remark about the young heir, who jumped up in a rage and went for his adversary.

That's when the rancher pulled back his boy by the seat of his pants. "Doggone, boy," he exclaimed, "how often do I have to tell you? Put down that knife and go after him with your fork!"

A candidate for Congress in Wisconsin was out drumming up support among his constituents when he spotted one of them milking a cow. Never the one to miss an opportunity, the candidate seized a pail and set out to help.

"That dumb opponent of mine," he began cheerfully. "Has he been around to talk to you yet?"

"He sure has," nodded the constituent. "Matter of fact, he's working the other side of this cow right now."

"My wallet," boasted an old Shakespearian ham "is bursting with big bills." Then he added sadly, "If only some of them were paid!"

Inside You and Yours

By BURTON H. FERN, M. D.
What is pleurisy? What causes it?

Pleurisy refers to an inflammation of the delicate tissue coating the lungs and inner chest wall. During each breath these two lubricated surfaces glide against each other.

When pneumonia or other lung trouble breaks through the outer coat, pleurisy begins. Sticky adhesions glue those two surfaces together. Friction increases as they rub against each other every time you breathe.

You feel a sharp, stabbing pain over the inflamed area. Because distant nerves share common roots, pleurisy may masquerade as appendicitis or arthritis of the shoulder.

Fever, chills, leaving you completely pooped.

You tend to sleep on the inflamed side. Now your weight splints the chest and you breathe easier during the night.

This is dry pleurisy.

Sometimes quarts of fluid gush out between the lung and chest wall. Trained, thumping fingers can outline this wet pleurisy.

If this fluid squeezes your lungs so that you can't breathe, the doctor can draw it off with an ordinary needle and syringe. He'll want some for a laboratory examination to help find the underlying trouble.

How many days were you feverish? You'll have to rest in bed until your temperature's been down just as long.

Don't forget extra vitamins; fever increases your need. Eat plenty of protein, too.

Heating pads help soothe the pain, allowing you to breathe deeper. So do mild pain-relievers that don't stop coughing.

Adhesive strapping or elastic bandages can splint your chest, but they restrict breathing and coughing where they're most needed. Injections of procaine (Novocain R) can numb the chest's pain-carrying nerves to help you breathe and cough painlessly.

Meanwhile, your doctor will seek out and attack the underlying trouble with antibiotic germ-killers and other medicines. Wet pleurisy dries by itself.

But you may need special pills to digest away those glue-like adhesions. They can leave you with sticky trouble for years!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

Factors for Tiredness

By George Sokolsky

It is often asked why the Kennedy Administration uses so many young and untried men in critical positions. It could be assumed that the President being in his young 40's is not comfortable with older men, say, like Bernard Baruch at 92 or James A. Farley at 74.

Robert Kennedy, in his new book, "Just Friends and Brave Enemies," discloses the philosophy of youth. He writes:

"I remember that Ambassador Reischauer, when he encouraged me to make this trip, said the great problem we face in Japan is the growing feeling that the United States is a tired old country and that Communism and the Communists are developing young leaders for the future."

"As the President pointed out, a new generation now carries the torch in the United States. 'We must,' as Ambassador Reischauer said, 'try and project our true image around the world.'"

"Come to Japan," he told me. "You are young. You look rested. Come and offset this false feeling."

"And so we went; we listened; we told people about the United States and about the American people. We left the United States, as Ambassador Reischauer said, young and rested."

Ardent, inquisitive youth is often like Marco Polo, always discovering something new and unknown which was always there. Bob Kennedy visited Japan more than 40 years after I first saw that country and I always came away from Japan, young and rested. For since 1868, when the Meiji Revolution occurred, Japan has been young and virile and not tired. In a word, an older man can know what a man newly discovers.

My own experience has been that age is difficult to determine. For instance, Herbert Hoover at 88 went through a cancer operation and, except for a day or two worked all the time. He is back to turning out three books this year. Bernard Baruch at 92 is mentally more vigorous than most men in their 40's. His store of knowledge, his vast experience, his record of trial and error, is advantageous to anyone who has access to him.

There are young men who are intellectually sclerotic in their youth. They may wear Phi Beta Kappa keys, but their mental processes are inflexible and they seem unable to learn from history or experience. They move like a horse with blinders.

Age is a matter of glands, arteries and the conceits which can be just as rigid at 18 as at 80. Mozart was intellectually mature in his teens; Talleyrand, Bismarck, Baruch, Hoover and so many others have been able to remain young in mind and progressive in spirit far into a ripe, old age.

The United States obviously is a tired nation; yet, in the arts the United States is expressing a vibrant virility, a young and driving imagination which proves that the fatigue is being shaken off. This is particularly true in music.

Our political responses, however, are not inspiring. It is many years since this country has produced a political mind such as Elihu Root possessed. In this generation, we have no Henry Clay or Daniel Webster. Our political fatigue is the result of our electoral system. It is too costly to be elected and too tiresome. It costs too much to be an independent person. Such a figure as Abraham Lincoln or Robert La Follette the elder would have a difficult time finding a role in American politics.

This is a more important factor in our fatigue than age. It means that valuable talent is wasted because we have made the cost of service to the nation too extravagant and excessive.

But there are many other factors in our general tiredness. The public obsession with sex and gossip and so-called celebrities diverts from a consideration nationally of the virtues of a great personality. The Democrats in New York nominated an unknown and inexperienced candidate for Governor, a person so raw that his name does not appear in "Who's Who in America," only because senior members of his family were once important personalities.

One needs to think of the waste of time and thought or minor matters of almost neurotic selfishness and narcissistic obsession with oneself and one's figure and hair color and ailments. No wonder the President conducts a campaign for physical fitness. We might also conduct one for mental fitness. We need perhaps to battle most against self-pity which is a disease of youth.

He is back to turning out three books this year. Bernard Baruch at 92 is mentally more vigorous than most men in their 40's. His store of knowledge, his vast experience, his record of trial and error, is advantageous to anyone who has access to him.

There are young men who are intellectually sclerotic in their youth. They may wear Phi Beta Kappa keys, but their mental processes are inflexible and they seem unable to learn from history or experience. They move like a horse with blinders.

Age is a matter of glands, arteries and the conceits which can be just as rigid at 18 as at 80. Mozart was intellectually mature in his teens; Talleyrand, Bismarck, Baruch, Hoover and so many others have been able to remain young in mind and progressive in spirit far into a ripe, old age.

The United States obviously is a tired nation; yet, in the arts the United States is expressing a vibrant vitality, a young and driving imagination which proves that the fatigue is being shaken off. This is particularly true in music.

Our political responses, however, are not inspiring. It is many years since this country has produced a political mind such as Elihu Root possessed. In this generation, we have no Henry Clay or Daniel Webster. Our political fatigue is the result of our electoral system. It is too costly to be elected and too tiresome. It costs too much to be an independent person. Such a figure as Abraham Lincoln or Robert La Follette the elder would have a difficult time finding a role in American politics.

This is a more important factor in our fatigue than age. It means that valuable talent is wasted because we have made the cost of service to the nation too extravagant and excessive.

But there are many other factors in our general tiredness. The public obsession with sex and gossip and so-called celebrities diverts from a consideration nationally of the virtues of a great personality. The Democrats in New York nominated an unknown and inexperienced candidate for Governor, a person so raw that his name does not appear in "Who's Who in America," only because senior members of his family were once important personalities.

One needs to think of the waste of time and thought or minor matters of almost neurotic selfishness and narcissistic obsession with oneself and one's figure and hair color and ailments. No wonder the President conducts a campaign for physical fitness. We might also conduct one for mental fitness. We need perhaps to battle most against self-pity which is a disease of youth.

'Maverick' Not at All Sold On Making Movies Abroad

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hollywood would have no runaway-production problems if all stars were like James (stay-at-home) Garner.

That's his self-administered title after shooting "The Great Escape" in Munich for three months.

"I've been in worse places; I was in Korea," said the former infantryman.

Garner's opinions aren't likely to cement friendship with our West German allies, but then, he has a knack of living up to his original character of Maverick. "I'm part German myself—the part that isn't English, Irish, Scotch (sic), or Cherokee," said the actor. "My name was Bumgarner, so you can see that I'm pretty German."

"But I found the Germans don't like Americans. Oh, they're civil, all right, but they're never really friendly."

"The Great Escape" is the story of a mass escape from a German prison camp, and Garner grudgingly concedes that the scenery was necessary for the story.

"The scenery was marvelous," he admitted. "But if anyone goes to Europe merely to make a picture on outdoor sets they're nuts. The weather is so much worse over there than in California that you lose whatever savings you make in production costs."

"Our picture was budgeted at $3 million and went $3½, largely because of the lousy weather. I guess we should have known how it would be after it snowed on our first day of production—June 21!"

Garner snorted over a newspaper story classing him as one of the "brats of Hollywood" because he demanded "an ornate villa" on the Munich location. According to the report, the studio even built him a marble hall "like the one he has at home so he won't be homesick."

"Ornate villa!" he exclaimed. "I wish you could have seen my three-room joint. Marble hall! All I've got at home is an alabaster vase."

"The place did have a swimming pool. That is, it was either a swimming or a diving pool; you couldn't do both. Matter of fact, you couldn't do either, because it was empty."

Ohioan Is Expelled By Yale University

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—An unidentified 19-year-old Yale sophomore from Cleveland, Ohio, was expelled from the university Monday after, police said, he had admitted exploding three home-made chemical bombs on the campus. The youths name was withheld.

A freshman suffered chest cuts in one blast, but most of the damage was to property.

John W. Powell, director of security at Yale, said the youth has agreed to pay for damages caused by the explosion.

Lawson Firm Sues Unionist for Libel

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Lawson Milk Co. is suing Cecil Dunlap, president of Retail Store Employees Local 880, for alleged libelous statements made in connection with Lawson's fight to have the state Sunday closing law amended.

The suit, asking $250,000 damages alleges Dunlap in a recent issue of his union's publication, "880 News and Views," made statements intended to injure Lawson's reputation. The company claims the statements questioned Lawson's motives in sponsoring the amendment, which will be on the November ballot.

Sandusky Set To Honor Miss America

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP)—Sandusky is going to do it up right when their girl comes home.

A mammoth celebration is being planned to greet the local beauty, Jackie Mayer, who was crowned Miss America in Atlantic City two weeks ago.

Plans do not call for just one parade and a welcome greeting. The Lake Erie town is going to whoop it up for their darling for two days, Nov. 1-2.

On Nov. 1, Jackie will ride on a float at the beginning of the celebration. The float probably will rival anything seen at the beauty pageant. It will be 50 feet long, 16 feet wide and the city has engaged a decorating firm to build the float, plus decorating the entire city.

Great Scott Displays of Newcomerstown will have charge of the decorations. Color scheme for the occasion will be red, white and blue.

Miss America will sit on a throne covered in white satin. Arrangements of American Beauty

Roses will be used profusely. The float of the float will carry a map of the United States. If the weatherman cooperates, the roses will be real.

The huge float is under construction in Newcomerstown. It will be hauled to Sandusky in trucks for the final construction.

NEW YORK (AP)—Well, those double doors finally opened again after all the months and Loretta Young whirled out and introduced us to her new series.

Miss Young's new CBS show is a continuing story about a widow—played by Miss Young of course—and her seven children. The first show Monday night was amusing and highly improbable but served to introduce the large family. It was played mostly for laughs.

It was a rather pleasant beginning—for the feminine audience, anyway. Miss Young does dress so well.

High point of the evening, however, was "The Road to Button Bay," a warm, loving and brilliantly executed documentary film about last summer's senior Girl Scout roundup in Vermont. Producer Robert Drew chose three girls, every one a charmer, and followed them from their Kansas homes through the entire Girl Scout gathering.

It was a perfectly delightful hour. And what do you know? CBS quietly went ahead and showed it in color.

CBS' other special was "Opening Night," boasting five big stars—Lucille Ball, Jack Benny, Danny Thomas, Andy Griffith and Garry Moore. Unfortunately they had pretty feeble comedy material but tried valiantly for laughs. It was actually less a variety hour than a pump-priming operation. All the stars have a sponsor in common and the sponsor took the occasion to get his five expensive investments off to a good seasonal start with a big television promotion.

Recommended tonight: "Red Skelton Show," CBS, 8:30-9:30 (EDT)—returning with a new, hour-long program, aided by Harpo Marx; "Empire," premiere, NBC, 8:30-9:30 — Richard Egan, Ann Seymour and Terry Moore in a Western with contemporary setting; also returning with new shows, Jack Benny, Dick Powell, Gary Moore, "The Untouchables," "The Ordeal of Woodrow Wilson," special, NBC, 10:30-11 — Herbert Hoover comments on the World War I problems of another president.

Monday Club Members Hear Book Review

Mrs. Collis Young presented a book review based on "The Vanishing Adolescent" at the Monday Club meeting last night. Mrs. George Barnes, president conducted the business session.

The book is an original and penetrating study of adolescents in society. The author, Dr. E. Z. Friedenberg, is a teacher of adolescent development at Brooklyn College.

Mrs. Young stated that adolescents are affected by all social institutions, but school is the official agent by which society deals with adolescents and as such the school is representative of social forces and demands and as such is also morally responsible for the welfare of adolescents as complete human beings. The school should help the adolescent to find self definition through clarification of experience, and it should establish the young persons self-esteem.

According to Dr. Friedenberg the school is charged with the intellectual and moral development of the adolescent and it is held responsible for its deficiencies. For the most part the school accepts this responsibility. It tries to meet it professionally by means of a program planned to meet stated objectives.

The school exists fundamentally to provide the young people with a fairly tough and firmly fixed philosophical apparatus for making a certain kind of sense out of their lives and communicating with other people who may be assumed to have a basically similar apparatus.

It was pointed out that schools are a precise expression of our culture. They do prevent it from flying apart, polarize vision in certain directions, and they do certainly establish in young Americans common categories of thought. But they do not clarify the meaning of experience.

Dr. Friedenberg states that the school simply trains the maximum number of different students with a minimum effort. It's quest for simplicity rather than meaning reduces its power to clarify the lives of its students. It assumes that it is the youngster rather than the relationship between student and teacher or the school itself that needs to be readjusted. The school's motives are weighted toward administrative expediency rather than toward awareness of what is going on in the youngster and respect for what he is and what he may become.

Dr. Friedenberg says, "Self appraisal is not a simple task. He said we cannot leave the matter in the hands of others, nor can we manage to ignore their judgment in making our own. What we must decide is 'how we are valuable' rather than 'how valuable we are.' In order to maintain our self-esteem, we must be able to make a fairly accurate continuing self-appraisal and to find the results acceptable. Self-esteem is, therefore, closely related to clarification of experience, for, if we do not understand clearly what we have done and what has happened to us we have no true basis for self-esteem. The author also noted:

In adolescence, self-esteem is a crucial problem. There is yet little experience to base it on, there is too little diversity of experience and too little detachment to permit much objectivity. The adolescent, building his appraisal of himself, is therefore extremely vulnerable to the feeling and judgments expressed by the persons and institutions of his immediate environment. Adolescents lack reserve of self-esteem to sustain them under humiliating conditions. They cannot easily assimilate an attack on their dignity or worth for it produces not merely resentment but intense anxiety. The self is threatened while not defined and the boy or girl feels bewildered and ashamed.

The closing thoughts of Dr. Friedenberg's book are these: "I believe that adolescence, as a development process is becoming obsolete. For the school, the first step is to increase greatly the emphasis on competence. I mean intellectual competence, since that has been slighted by our schools. But the need goes deeper. The significance of competence in developing a stable identity is that it makes self conception specific. By helping the adolescent develop good specific reasons for thinking well of himself, the school can contribute greatly to a stable identity."

What is needed is no program of technical training by indoctrination, but the patient development of the kind of character and mind that conceives itself too clearly to consent to its own betrayal. It takes a kind of a shabby arrogance to survive in our time, and a fairly romantic nature to want to. These are scarce resources, but more abundant among adolescents than elsewhere, at least to begin with. In the national interest they should be preserved. The greatest safeguard to any democracy is a continuing community of self respecting young people who understand and accept their relationship to society."

Soviet Chief Opens Visit to Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev arrived today for a 10-day visit to demonstrate improved relations between the two nations long divided by an ideological dispute.

The visit was seen as significant not only because it marks improvement of Yugoslav-Soviet relations, but even more in the light of Red China's opposition to any links with Yugoslav's Marshal Tito.

Only a few days ago Red China, in its most vitriolic attack on Yugoslavia in months, accused Tito of being "a traitor to Marxism-Leninism and a tool of U.S. imperialism."

County WCTU Holds 72nd Convention at Salem Church

The Pickaway County Woman's Christian Temperance Union held its 72nd annual convention Friday in the Salem Methodist Church. Miss Mary Harpster, county president, called the meeting to order and all joined in singing, "Some Glad Day".

Mrs. Florence Haughn, county vice president, gave the morning devotion using the subject "Anoint Your Elbows". She read Eph. 6:10-20 for the scripture lesson followed by meditation and prayer.

Miss Sharon Sharrett presented a solo, "Rock of Ages." Miss Harpster gave a report of work for the year. The secretary reported on the May 25 Institute and the treasurer gave the yearly report.

Mrs. Harold Brown, state WCTU president, conducted the election which resulted in all old officers being retained for the 1962-63 year.

Various county directors presented reports of their departments for the year. Mrs. Bessie Allen of the Salem Union gave the noon prayer.

After a carry-in dinner the afternoon session opened with group singing. Mrs. Ethel Furniss, president of the Five Points Union, used as the scripture lesson, John 1:1 concluding with meditation and prayer.

Memorial services for the deceased members were conducted by Mrs. Haughn and Miss Sharrett sang "In the Garden".

Mrs. H. H. Brown, state president, gave a very interesting talk. The meeting closed with group singing and benediction.

Walnut Township Union will be hostess for the next convention and the Spring Institute.

15-Point Program Offered For Ohio's Mentally Retarded

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A 15-point program to keep pace with the needs of Ohio's mentally retarded children has been issued by Gov. Michael V. DiSalle.

The governor said the program of training, research, education and construction would be submitted, at his re-election, to the next legislature or would be implemented where possible by administrative action.

Reviewing state support for the mentally retarded, DiSalle said it has reached an all-time high over the past four years. He noted increases in community classes, enrollment, home visitors and appropriations.

"In spite of these increases," the governor said, "we are not keeping pace with the needs created by growth." He added that increasing population and longer life span combine to accentuate the problem.

DiSalle said to catch up with the needs he would submit the following points:

1. Increase of residential facilities, geographically distributed to make possible frequent visits by parents and the development of strong volunteer programs.

2. Elimination of the present regulation which denies admission to children under 6, having no basis for this restriction medically, scientifically or reasonably.

3. Additional diagnostic clinics to enable to early determination of the condition of a child, which might prevent deterioration of a condition or result in complete correction.

4. Day nurseries and day care centers for children under 6 years old as child and parent each child to reach his highest potential level of functioning.

5. Rehabilitation centers and sheltered work shops in conjunction with local communities for children 6 to 18.

6. Vocational work shops for those between ages of 16 and 21.

7. Day care centers for retarded between the ages of 6 and 18, as well as adult day care centers.

8. A more comprehensive program to prevent mental retardation, including services to prevent birth defects, prenatal care, pediatric care and safety provisions.

9. An increase in research programs, with emphasis on prevention as well as care and treatment.

10. Training programs for volunteer and professional personnel.

11. Cooperation between the state and local communities wherever possible, based on an approach including joint planning and use of resources.

12. Greater emphasis on classes for slow learners.

13. Extension of the home visitor program.

14. Special recruitment efforts for professional personnel including encouragement to state universities to initiate or expand teacher programs in courses for teaching the retarded.

15. Consideration of total life planning with the reasonable expectation that the mentally retarded can enjoy the expansion of the life span.

If you have fruit sherbet in your freezer, it will make a festive first course for Sunday dinner. After spooning cut-up fresh fruit into sherbet glasses, add a small scoop of the sherbet to each. Fresh mint, if it's available, makes a pretty garnish.

Dear Abby: by Abigail Van Buren

Dollars, but No 'Sense'!

DEAR ABBY: I was a widow for 15 years, then I met a man who had wealth and social position. After going together for a year we married. Everyone "oohed" and "aahed" over how lucky I was to get him. He promised me everything. No more going to the office (I was a secretary) and we would just travel, have a lovely apartment and enjoy life. Well, instead, he moved into MY home and I haven't missed a day's work in six years. I come home every evening and make supper. I spend Saturday and Sunday doing the laundry and marketing. I have not seen one cent of his money, and he has plenty of it. Whenever I hear about women marrying millionaires I laugh to myself. I married one and life hasn't changed for me. I tell people I work just to keep busy. Hah!

STUCK

DEAR STUCK: It is a man's obligation to support his wife. After six years, don't you think you ought to review the bidding? Could it be that he felt you married him for his dollars? Otherwise, it doesn't make sense.

DEAR ABBY: All I can find in the stores today are snippy, soured clerks who try to rush you into buying something. Whatever happened to all those nice old sales ladies who invited the customers to take their time and look over all the merchandise?

SHOPPER

DEAR SHOPPER: They all died of overwork trying to get their stock back in order.

DEAR ABBY: I have gone with this young man about five months. I have only one thing against him. He sleeps too much. Whenever we go to a movie, he falls asleep right away. He even sleeps through church services. It is very embarrassing to see a young man sleeping all over the girl he's with. I have never known a person who could fall asleep so fast. When we are at my home in the evening, I can't even hold a conversation with him because he goes to sleep right in the middle of it. I can't stand it any longer. Please give me some advice. I am 24 and he is 26.

SLEEPY'S FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: A healthy young man should not require as much sleep as your friend appears to need. Catch him when he's wide awake and tell him to see his physician for a check-up.

Unload your problem on Abby. For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

Monday Club Members Hear Book Review

Mrs. Collis Young presented a book review based on "The Vanishing Adolescent" at the Monday Club meeting last night. Mrs. George Barnes, president conducted the business session.

The book is an original and penetrating study of adolescents in society. The author, Dr. E. Z. Friedenberg, is a teacher of adolescent development at Brooklyn College.

Mrs. Young stated that adolescents are affected by all social institutions, but school is the official agent by which society deals with adolescents and as such the school is representative of social forces and demands and as such is also morally responsible for the welfare of adolescents as complete human beings. The school should help the adolescent to find self definition through clarification of experience, and it should establish the young persons self-esteem.

According to Dr. Friedenberg the school is charged with the intellectual and moral development of the adolescent and it is held responsible for its deficiencies. For the most part the school accepts this responsibility. It tries to meet it professionally by means of a program planned to meet stated objectives.

The school exists fundamentally to provide the young people with a fairly tough and firmly fixed philosophical apparatus for making a certain kind of sense out of their lives and communicating with other people who may be assumed to have a basically similar apparatus.

It was pointed out that schools are a precise expression of our culture. They do prevent it from flying apart, polarize vision in certain directions, and they do certainly establish in young Americans common categories of thought. But they do not clarify the meaning of experience.

Dr. Friedenberg states that the school simply trains the maximum number of different students with a minimum effort. It's quest for simplicity rather than meaning reduces its power to clarify the lives of its students. It assumes that it is the youngster rather than the relationship between student and teacher or the school itself that needs to be readjusted. The school's motives are weighted toward administrative expediency rather than toward awareness of what is going on in the youngster and respect for what he is and what he may become.

Dr. Friedenberg says, "Self appraisal is not a simple task. He said we cannot leave the matter in the hands of others, nor can we manage to ignore their judgment in making our own. What we must decide is 'how we are valuable' rather than 'how valuable we are.' In order to maintain our self-esteem, we must be able to make a fairly accurate continuing self-appraisal and to find the results acceptable. Self-esteem is, therefore, closely related to clarification of experience, for, if we do not understand clearly what we have done and what has happened to us we have no true basis for self-esteem. The author also noted:

In adolescence, self-esteem is a crucial problem. There is yet little experience to base it on, there is too little diversity of experience and too little detachment to permit much objectivity. The adolescent, building his appraisal of himself, is therefore extremely vulnerable to the feeling and judgments expressed by the persons and institutions of his immediate environment. Adolescents lack reserve of self-esteem to sustain them under humiliating conditions. They cannot easily assimilate an attack on their dignity or worth for it produces not merely resentment but intense anxiety. The self is threatened while not defined and

Fremont Ross Rated as Top Ohio Grid Team

Defending Champ Niles
Ranked Second with
Middletown Third

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Little Giants of Fremont Ross, opening game conquerors of mighty Massillon, were named Ohio's No. 1 high school football team today in the opening Associated Press poll of the 1962 campaign.

The Circleville High School football team has been rated 17th in the first of the Associated Press state high school football polls.

The Tigers received 22 points, including one first place vote that was good for 10 points. Their were the only South Central Ohio League team mentioned in the initial balloting.

Coach Mal Mackey's three-game winners picked up eight of 30 first-place votes and compiled 198 poll points to snatch the lead from defending champion Niles McKinley by a 48-point margin. Seven voters named the champs as their top choice.

Fremont, runnerup to Canton McKinley for the 1956 state title, hit the heights in the opener by beating Massillon's youngsters 8-7. The Giants followed with a 21-0 verdict over Cleveland West and then trimmed Toledo Waite 40-0.

Rounding out the top 10 are Middletown; Kettering Fairmont; seven-time champion Massillon; Sandusky; once-beaten Alliance, the 1958 king; Lorain Admiral King, and a ninth-place tie between Warren Harding and Cincinnati Roger Bacon.

Paul Walker Jr., 190-pound 6-foot-1 son of basketball coach Paul Walker, is quarterbacking Middletown's unorthodox offense. The sterling junior has passed for eight touchdowns in three games.

The "Tiger" splits each end 15 yards from the tackles, flanks both halfbacks and has only the fullback behind the quarter. One of the halves is in motion on every play, and the ball is snapped as he pats the quarterback while passing behind him at dead run. The quarterback rolls out on all plays and then decides whether to run or pass.

Coach Carol Hawhee, starting his 17th season at Waverly, has quite a fullback in 190-pound Steve Oyer. Steve has 50 points in three games, and Friday against Portsmouth East he rushed for 207 yards in 32 tries.

Chillicothe High put a new $10,000 set of lights in its stadium. In the opener against Washington Court House the lights went out for two hours in the third period. Chillicothe won it 14-6 at 11:30 p.m.

Steve Coyan, 175-pound halfback gained 175 yards in 8 carries as Jackson defeated Pomeroy for its 18th straight.

Steubenville's 53-12 win over Weirton, W. Va. — that state's Triple-A champ three of the last five years — was its greatest margin in the long rivalry. All-Ohio halfback Harry Wilson led the rout with three touchdowns.

Wade Watts, formerly of Canton McKinley and twice coach of the year, is in his first season at Fairfield Union in Fairfield County. It's a new school composed of Bremen, Rushville and Pleasantville — and the latter two never had a football team. But Wade has led his inexperienced crew to consecutive wins over Piketon 24-8, Sheridan 40-0 and Buchtel York 54-6.

Chuck Wetz of Shelby went 62, 53, and 84 yards for touchdowns in the 32-0 rout of Tiffin Columbian.

Young Vikings Trip A-C Unit For 20-0 Win

Using an all freshman backfield during most of the game, the Teays Valley reserves downed the visiting Amanda-Clearcreek yearlings, 20-0 yesterday.

Every member of the reserve squad saw action in the tilt as the Viking coaching staff substituted freely.

Marion Waites, Viking coach, said his staff was pleased with the performance turned in by the young Vikings. It was their first win. They dropped their first game to the Hamilton Twp. reserves, 8-0.

Monday they host the Logan Elm reserves.

DANNY SWANK, 145 - pound freshman, raced 40 yards to the five to set up the first touchdown for the winners. He then smashed off tackle for the remaining five yards and the touchdown.

A 65-yard pass play from Dave Reese to Richard Hay picked up the second six-pointer.

Mike Seymour caught a 20-yard pass from Dave Reese on the Amanda 30 yard line and went into the end zone standing up for the final score.

The try for the two extra points was good, giving the junior Vikings their first win.

Ouchy Finger May Be Curb To Ninowski

CLEVELAND (AP) — Quarterback Jim Ninowski of the Cleveland Browns hasn't been as effective with his passes during the regular season as he was during the early exhibitions. It may be that a jammed finger on his passing hand is the reason.

Ninowski was injured late in the exhibition victory at Los Angeles Sept. 1, but he didn't say anything about it. He shrugs off the injury as unimportant.

Dr. Vic Ippolito, the team physician, also said he didn't feel it was bothering the quarterback, but coach Paul Brown isn't quite so sure.

"Jim says it doesn't bother him, but he seems to be in there soaking it after every practice," Brown said Monday night. "And he hasn't thrown as well since it happened."

The Browns beat the Chicago Bears in a preseason game after Ninowski received the jammed finger against the Rams, but he was wild through much of the game.

Despite the handicap, Ninowski will be at quarterback Sunday afternoon when the Browns meet the Eagles in Philadelphia.

Alabama, national champion last year and a runaway winner in its 1962 opener Saturday, is back on top today in the first Associated Press poll of the college football season.

'Bama took the No. 1 ranking away from Ohio State, the leader in the pre-season ratings but untested so far this fall. The Crimson Tide trailed in the first-place votes cast by AP's nationwide board of selectors, 19-14 but was more solidly supported otherwise and had a 342-298 edge in points.

The first seven all made the pre-season listings. Georgia Tech, Southern Cal and Missouri supplanted Purdue, Duke and Washington.

Robinson, Davis Duel for Honors

NEW YORK (AP) — As the major league baseball season swings into its final days, the National League batting race shapes up as a duel that figures to go right down to the wire.

Tommy Davis of Los Angeles and Frank Robinson of Cincinnati are tied for the lead today at .343 each. Boston's Pete Runnels had virtually wrapped up the American League batting crown with a .328 mark.

Davis gained three points last week with 11 hits in 26 at bats. Robinson went 9-for-22 during the week for a two-point increase. St. Louis' Stan Musial ranks third in the National loop with .327.

Runnels boasts a commanding 17-point lead over Washington's Chuck Hinton, runnerup at .311.

Rod Laver, American, Australian, British and French tennis champion from Australia plays golf right-handed and shoots in the low 80s. In tennis he features his left hand.

The Pickaway County side-wheeler drew the fifth post position.

Paul Hornung of the Green Bay Packers tuned up for the National Football League season with 45 points in pre-season exhibitions. He scored two touchdowns, made 24 extra points and three field goals.

O'Toole Is Tapped To Save Redlegs

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds were relying tonight on Jim O'Toole to help them clinch third place by beating the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Cincinnati needs one victory in its four remaining games to finish third. Pittsburgh, four games behind the Reds, still has hopes of passing them in its remaining six games. The Reds have four more games to play, counting tonight's.

O'Toole (16-13), sidelined last Sunday because of a stiffness in his left arm, will oppose Earl Francis (8-8).

Tiger Reserves Nip Lancaster For Third Win

Last Quarter Tally,
Conversion Enough
For 8-6 Decision

A last quarter touchdown by freshman fullback George Ramey and a two-point conversion run by Howard (Hodge) Dade, freshman halfback, gave the Circleville reserve team an 8-6 win yesterday over the invading Lancaster Gales.

The touchdown climaxed a 59-yard drive that started on the Tigers' own 41 yard line.

Lancaster came back with only 1:20 on the clock to score on a pass from John Canfield to Max Sowers from the Circleville 28. The Tiger defense stopped the conversion try.

Another Gale touchdown, early in the first quarter, was nullified by a backfield in motion penalty.

ON THE next play Tiger Eddie Smith recovered a fumble on the Circleville 20. In the second quarter neither team was able to move the ball effectively.

The young Tigers moved the pigskin from their own 40 to the Lancaster 14. But the Gales held at that point and the locals lost the ball on downs.

The Tigers controlled the ball during most of the third quarter but were unable to score.

It was the third win in as many outings for Coach Bill Mosure's reserve squad.

Football coach Jim Owens of the University of Washington is also the school's athletic director.

Aussies Get Final Chance In Yachting

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — It's win or sink today for Australia's hopes in the America's Cup series, but the popular Aussies refuse to act their role of underdog.

"We will win," flatly predicted Sir Frank Packer, head of the syndicate that mounted the million-dollar Australian challenge to the 111-year old mug that is emblematic of yacht racing supremacy.

The Australian yacht Gretel is down 1-3 in the best-of-seven series, and must win today to keep alive.

A victory for the American defender Weatherly would keep the ugly old silver mug in the New York Yacht Club showcase for another two years, at least.

The British are expected to mount the next challenge, in 1964. The Italians have indicated they might like to take a crack at the winner of that series.

If you believe the weatherman, it will be Weatherly's favorite weather today—northwest to westerly in the 10-20 knot range. That would almost duplicate the conditions of the first race which the American defender won handily.

Fremont Ross Rated as Top Ohio Grid Team

Defending Champ Niles
Ranked Second with
Middletown Third

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Little Giants of Fremont Ross, opening game conquerors of mighty Massillon, were named Ohio's No. 1 high school football team today in the opening Associated Press poll of the 1962 campaign.

The Circleville High School football team has been rated 17th in the first of the Associated Press state high school football polls.

The Tigers received 22 points, including one first place vote that was good for 10 points. Their were the only South Central Ohio League team mentioned in the initial balloting.

Coach Mal Mackey's three-game winners picked up eight of 30 first-place votes and compiled 198 poll points to snatch the lead from defending champion Niles McKinley by a 48-point margin. Seven voters named the champs as their top choice.

Fremont, runnerup to Canton McKinley for the 1956 state title, hit the heights in the opener by beating Massillon's youngsters 8-7. The Giants followed with a 21-0 verdict over Cleveland West and then trimmed Toledo Waite 40-0.

Rounding out the top 10 are Middletown; Kettering Fairmont; Sandusky; once-beaten Alliance, the 1958 king; Lorain Admiral King, and a ninth-place tie between Warren Harding and Cincinnati Roger Bacon.

Paul Walker Jr., 190-pound 6-foot-1 son of basketball coach Paul Walker, is quarterbacking Middletown's unorthodox offense. The sterling junior has passed for eight touchdowns in three games.

The "Tiger" splits each end 15 yards from the tackles, flanks both halfbacks and has only the fullback behind the quarter. One of the halves is in motion on every play, and the ball is snapped as he pats the quarterback while passing behind him at dead run. The quarterback rolls out on all plays and then decides whether to run or pass.

Coach Carol Hawhee, starting his 17th season at Waverly, has quite a fullback in 190-pound Steve Oyer. Steve has 50 points in three games, and Friday against Portsmouth East he rushed for 207 yards in 32 tries.

Chillicothe High put a new $10,000 set of lights in its stadium. In the opener against Washington Court House the lights went out for two hours in the third period. Chillicothe won it 14-6 at 11:30 p.m.

Steve Coyan, 175-pound halfback gained 175 yards in 8 carries as Jackson defeated Pomeroy for its 18th straight.

Stuebenville's 53-12 win over Weirton, W. Va. —that state's Triple-A champ three of the last five years—was its greatest margin in the long rivalry. All-Ohio halfback Harry Wilson led the rout with three touchdowns.

Wade Watts, formerly of Canton McKinley and twice coach of the year, is in his first season at Fairfield Union in Fairfield County. It's a new school composed of Bremen, Rushville and Pleasantville—and the latter two never had a football team. But Wade has led his inexperienced crew to consecutive wins over Piketon 24-8, Sheridan 40-0 and Buchtel York 54-6.

Chuck Wetz of Shelby went 62, 53, and 84 yards for touchdowns in the 32-0 rout of Tiffin Columbian.

Jack Whitcomb, senior quarterback for Hayesville, scored all five touchdowns in the 35-6 win over Jeromesville on runs of 20, 8, 55, 25 and 25 yards.

Using an all freshman backfield during most of the game, the Teays Valley reserves downed the visiting Amanda-Clearcreek yearlings, 20-0 yesterday.

Marion Waites, Viking coach, said his staff was pleased with the performance turned in by the young Vikings. It was their first win. They dropped their first game to the Hamilton Twp. reserves, 8-0.

Monday they host the Logan Elm reserves.

DANNY SWANK, 145 - pound freshman, raced 40 yards to the five to set up the first touchdown for the winners. He then smashed off tackle for the remaining five yards and the touchdown.

A 65-yard pass play from Dave Roese to Richard Hay picked up the second six-pointer.

Mike Seymour caught a 20-yard pass from Dave Roese on the Amanda 30 yard line and went into the end zone standing up for the final score.

The try for the two extra points was good, giving the junior Vikings their first win.

Ouchy Finger May Be Curb To Ninowski

CLEVELAND (AP) — Quarterback Jim Ninowski of the Cleveland Browns hasn't been as effective with his passes during the regular season as he was during the early exhibitions. It may be that a jammed finger on his passing hand is the reason.

Ninowski was injured late in the exhibition victory at Los Angeles Sept. 1, but he didn't say anything about it. He shrugs off the injury as unimportant.

Dr. Vic Ippolito, the team physician, also said he didn't feel it was bothering the quarterback, but coach Paul Brown isn't quite so sure.

"Jim says it doesn't bother him, but he seems to be in there soaking it after every practice," Brown said Monday night. "And he hasn't thrown as well since it happened."

The Browns beat the Chicago Bears in a preseason game after Ninowski received the jammed finger against the Rams, but he was wild through much of the game.

Despite the handicap, Ninowski will be at quarterback Sunday afternoon when the Browns meet the Eagles in Philadelphia.

12th American League pennant in the last 14 years and set up the first coast-to-coast World Series in history.

Meanwhile, 3,000 miles away, the National League leading Los Angeles Dodgers will go with relief specialist Ed Roebuck in a bold bid to increase their three-game edge over the second-place San Francisco Giants.

Ford, who has posted an impressive 16-8 record despite off-and-on arm trouble, will face the Senators' Benny Daniels (7-15). He can nail the Yankees' 27th pennant with a win no matter what second-place Minnesota does against Cleveland.

The Twins will start Camilo Pascual (19-10) in an effort to stay in the race should the Yankees' falter. Minnesota is 4½ games behind with four remaining to play. New York has five games left. Pascual will be opposed by Pedro Ramos (9-12).

Roebuck (10-0) was the surprise choice for the Dodgers as they prepared to tackle Houston and former teammate Dick Farrell (9-19) while trying to set up their first pennant since 1959.

The Dodgers lead the Giants by three with six games remaining for each contender. Any combination of four Los Angeles victories and San Francisco defeats will give the Dodgers the flag.

The Giants will be host to St. Louis, starting veteran Billy Pierce (14-6) against the Cardinals' Ernie Broglio (11-8).

Only one game was scheduled in either league Monday night. In that, Kansas City defeated Baltimore, 5-2.

The A's scored first in the fourth, getting three runs off Jack Fisher (7-9) on singles by Jose Tartabull, Ed Charles and Norm Siebern, a bases-loaded walk to Johnny Wojcik and a wild pitch.

Siebern scored Kansas City's second run in the sixth when he singled and eventually came across on a grounder, then closed out the scoring in the eighth with his 24th homer.

ON the next play Tiger Eddie Smith recovered a fumble on the Circleville 20. In the second quarter neither team was able to move the ball effectively.

The young Tigers moved the pigskin from their own 40 to the Lancaster 14. But the Gales held at that point and the locals lost the ball on downs.

The Tigers controlled the ball during most of the third quarter but were unable to score.

It was the third win in as many outings for Coach Bill Mosure's reserve squad.

Football coach Jim Owens of the University of Washington is also the school's athletic director.

Aussies Get Final Chance In Yachting

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — It's win or sink today for Australia's hopes in the America's Cup series, but the popular Aussies refuse to act their role of underdog.

"We will win," flatly predicted Sir Frank Packer, head of the syndicate that mounted the million-dollar Australian challenge to the 111-year old mug that is emblematic of yacht racing supremacy.

The Australian yacht Gretel is down 1-3 in the best-of-seven series, and must win today to keep alive.

A victory for the American defender Weatherly would keep the ugly old silver mug in the New York Yacht Club showcase for another two years, at least.

The British are expected to mount the next challenge, in 1964. The Italians have indicated they might like to take a crack at the winner of that series.

If you believe the weatherman, it will be Weatherly's favorite weather today—northwest to westerly in the 10-20 knot range. That would almost duplicate the conditions of the first race which the American defender won handily.

Ohio State Buckeyes Will Field Experienced Team

By WALTER JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor
COLUMBUS, O. — Woody Hayes, the controversial but very successful coach of the Ohio State Buckeyes, has two major problems in this football-mad community this season — and neither have anything to do with ability or quality of his personnel.

First, the Bucks have been picked to win the national championship and this, of course, has to be soft-pedaled before one or more of his warriors take the pre-season writeups too seriously.

Second, Woody has to contend with "senioritis" for eight of the starting 11 are seniors — and this could be a factor.

Naturally, Woody is ready for both.

"It's no secret about us being picked highly," he says as he goes into a long discourse on this subject.

"It's due to us having a veteran offensive unit and because we finished the season in a blaze of glory. (50-20 over Michigan).

"All these writeups are going to hurt the team," warns Woody. "No team has ever won the title in August. Actually, I think it's impossible to make such predictions. You men (newspapermen) are better writers than prophets."

"We have a lot of seniors," continued Woody, "but I don't think we'll have senioritis. We generally raise hell with our sophs out on the field but we don't do that with seniors. But mark you this, I'll bench 'em so fast your head will swim if the seniors don't come through. Sure we have some trouble with seniors. I had trouble with Bob Ferguson last year. He wasn't blocking well and I disciplined him. And he then was more marvelous than I thought."

Woody was asked about the complaint of other coaches that Ohio

State doesn't play any of the other top contenders, Purdue, Michigan State and Minnesota.

He then went into a coverage of Ohio's foes, and accented the tough job the Bucks had last year against Indiana, which didn't win a Big Ten game.

"We've been tougher against the good clubs," Woody said. "And don't tell me there isn't a psychological disadvantage when you play the weaker teams."

The Bucks lost only two starters from the 1961 squad which finished with an 8-0-1 record. Gone are Chuck Bryant, the fine end, and the All-American fullback, Ferguson.

Woody's size-up as the Bucks prepare for the opener here against North Carolina September 29 goes like this:

"Our halfbacks are back and they should be better. The quarterbacks are back and they're better. Our fullbacks aren't as good as Ferguson. The ends are the same except for Bryant. Our defense is weaker, because we're inexperienced here."

Injuries hurt many teams, but the Bucks have been lucky in this respect. Woody will tell you that "we have the best training staff in the business. We don't scrimmage as much and making them run the six-minute mile is part of our integrated study as is the neck exercises for we block with our heads."

The offensive team has Ormonde Ricketts, junior and right end last year, and Bob Middleton at the ends; 230-pound Bob Vogel and 226-pound Daryl Sanders at the tackles; 226-pound Tom Jenkins and 230-pound Rod Foster at the guards and the best all-around football player on the squad, Bill Armstrong, 189, at center.

Quarterbacking duties will be shared by John Mummey, the better runner, and Joe Sparma, the better passer. Sparma is the only other junior, along with Ricketts, on the first team.

To help the defense at the wings, Woody moved halfback Matt Snell, a fine blocker, to left end. One of the top linebackers on the defensive unit is Gary Moeller, a regular for three years. Bill Mrukowski is the quarterback on the defensive unit and Nick Yonclis, a soph from Delhi, N. Y., looks like a fine passer coming up.

Among the coach hopefuls are Arnie Chonko, a lefthanded passer from Parma, O., who is playing left half on defense, and Doug Drenik, fullback, Tyrone Barnett, another soph, is the most consistent halfback of the newcomers "with a name like that," says Woody, "he's just got to run."

Dave Katterhenrich, a two-letter winner at fullback, is around but has a history of being hurt and now is 20 pounds overweight.

Woody says that each year the coaching staff "prepares for just three teams" and it's a "calculated risk." He wouldn't name the three teams, naturally, but the Bucks take on U.C.L.A., Illinois, Northwestern, Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, Oregon and Michigan after the opener.

They've added 1,500 extra bleacher seats in the open part of Ohio stadium and the big plant now has a seating capacity of 90,982. This is misleading, however, for in the last eight years Ohio State has averaged over 80,000 a game and in the last four years the average is 82,800.

Ohio State Buckeyes Will Field Experienced Team

By WALTER JOHNS

Central Press Sports Editor

COLUMBUS, O. — Woody Hayes, the controversial but very successful coach of the Ohio State Buckeyes, has two major problems in this football-mad community this season — and neither has anything to do with ability or quality of his personnel.

First, the Bucks have been picked to win the national championship and this, of course, has to be soft-pedaled before one or more of his warriors take the pre-season writeups too seriously.

Second, Woody has to contend with "senioritis," for eight of the starting 11 are seniors — and this could be a factor.

Naturally, Woody is ready for both. "It's no secret about us being picked highly," he says as he goes into a long discourse on this subject.

"It's due to us having a veteran offensive unit and because we finished the season in a blaze of glory, (50-20 over Michigan).

"All these writeups are going to hurt the team," warns Woody. "No team has ever won the title in August. Actually, I think it's impossible to make such predictions. You men (newspapermen) are better writers than prophets."

"We have a lot of seniors," continued Woody, "but I don't think we'll have senioritis. We generally raise hell with our sophs out on the field but we don't do that with seniors. But mark you this, I'll bench 'em so fast your head will swim if the seniors don't come through. Sure we have some trouble with seniors. I had trouble with Bob Ferguson last year. He wasn't blocking well and I disciplined him. And he then was more marvelous than I thought."

Woody was asked about the complaint of other coaches that Ohio

State doesn't play any of the other top contenders, Purdue, Michigan State and Minnesota.

He then went into a coverage of Ohio's foes, and accented the tough job the Bucks had last year against Indiana, which didn't win a Big Ten game.

"We've been tougher against the good clubs," Woody said. "And don't tell me there isn't a psychological disadvantage when you play the weaker teams."

The Bucks lost only two starters from the 1961 squad which finished with an 8-0-1 record. Gone are Chuck Bryant, the fine end, and the All-American fullback, Ferguson.

Woody's size-up of the Bucks prepare for the opener here against North Carolina September 29 goes like this:

"Our halfbacks are back and they should be better. The ends are the same except for Bryant. Our defense is weaker, because we're inexperienced here."

Injuries hurt many teams, but the Bucks have been lucky in this respect. Woody will tell you that "we have the best training staff in the business. We don't scrimmage as much and making them run the six-minute mile is part of our integrated study as is the neck exercises for we block with our heads."

The offensive team has Ormonde Ricketts, junior and right end last year, and Bob Middleton at the ends; 230-pound Bob Vogel and 226-pound Daryl Sanders at the tackles; 226-pound Tom Jenkins and 230-pound Rod Foster at the guards and the best all-around football player on the squad, Bill Armstrong, 189, at center.

Quarterbacking duties will be shared by John Mummey, the better runner, and Joe Sparma, the better passer. Sparma is the only other junior, along with Ricketts, on the first team.

To help the defense at the wings, Woody moved halfback Matt Snell, a fine blocker, to left end. One of the top linebacksers on the defensive unit is Gary Moeller, a regular for three years. Bill Mrukowski is the quarterback on the defensive unit and Nick Yonclas, a soph from Delhi, N. Y., looks like a fine passer coming up.

Among the soph hopefuls are Arnie Chonko, a lefthanded passer from Parma, O., who is playing left half on defense, and Doug Drenik, fullback, Tyrone Barnett, another soph, is the most consistent halfback of the newcomers and "with a name like that," says Woody, "he's just got to run."

Dave Katterhenrich, a two-letter winner at fullback, is around but has a history of being hurt and now is 20 pounds overweight.

Woody says that each year the coaching staff "prepares for just three teams" and it's a "calculated risk." He wouldn't name the three teams, naturally, but the Bucks take on U.C.L.A., Illinois, Northwestern, Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, Oregon and Michigan after the opener.

They've added 1,500 extra bleacher seats in the open part of Ohio stadium and the big plant now has a seating capacity of 80,982. This is misleading, however, for in the last eight years Ohio State has averaged over 80,000 a game and in the last four years the average is 82,800.

Kiwanis, Key Clubs Combine To Conduct Ladies Night Fete

Arrangements of fall flowers, corn and pumpkins graced the tables in the dining room of the Grange and 4-H Building for a Ladies' Night banquet conducted last night by the Kiwanis Club and the CHS Key Club.

The meeting was opened by the group singing "America" and giving the Pledge of Allegiance to the U. S. flag, led by Truman Eberly, Kiwanis president. The table prayer was given by Key Clubber John Hatcher. Background music was played throughout the dinner.

Following the dinner, Key Club president Edward Wright introduced members of his club who in turn introduced their dates, and the Kiwanis Key Club committee.

Roscoe Warren, chairman of the Kiwanis Key Club Committee, presided over the induction of new members into the Key Club. He gave a brief history of the organization.

THE FIRST Key Club was founded in Sacramento, Calif., in 1925 in an effort to combat the illegal aspects and undesirable influences of secret societies and fraternities in high schools. Through the years the organization has grown until today there are more than 2,500 clubs in the United States and six Canadian Provinces. To membership exceeds 56,000.

The first portion of the entertainment for the evening was provided by the Curtin Callers, a dramatic club from Circleville High School under the leadership of Robert Ransom. Doyle Painter served as spokesman for the group.

Nancy Yates told a story about Daniel and the Lion's Den, Richard Crable gave a rendition from Shakespeare, Jim Stewart did a take-off from Bob Newhart. Carolyn Walters climaxed these presentations with her rendition of "Casey at the Bat."

David Fullen introduced Jan Wihl, a restaurant and TV entertainer from Columbus. As the main part of the program, she presented several selections of comedy mimicry, and was assisted in one number by Kiwanians Tom Bennett, Forrest Brown and Ralph Starkey.

A drawing was held and the

More for a dollar today! How come?

Electricity...a better buy today!

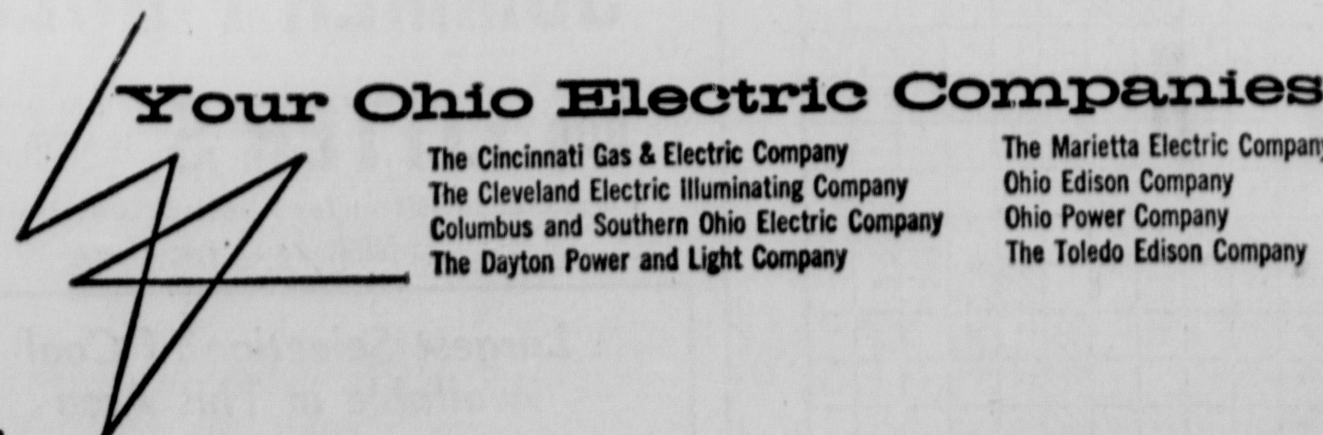

It sounds ridiculous to say that a dollar will buy more of anything today than it did in the 30's—but it's true. In Ohio, it will buy more electricity! If you bought your residential electricity in boxes, you'd be well aware that the amount a dollar buys today is larger than it was in 1935!

The average family is using 5½ times more electricity now, and naturally, your bill is bigger. But thanks to the lower unit cost, your bill hasn't grown in proportion.

What has kept the price of electricity

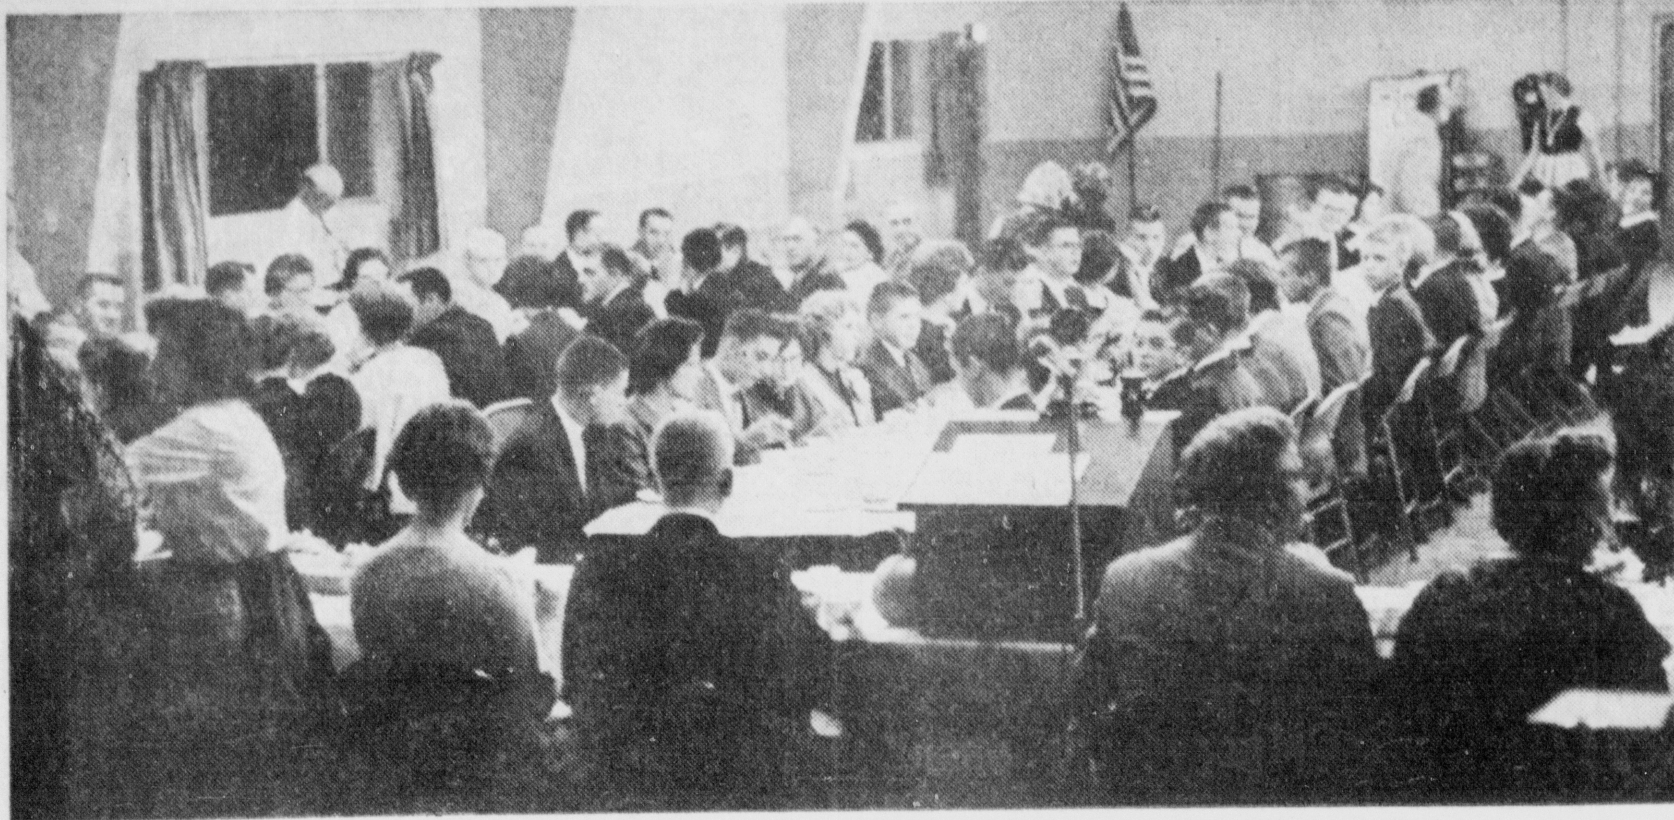

low in Ohio? Thanks to Ohio's historically favorable business climate, the electric companies have been able to raise the millions needed to make improvements. Through these improvements they have kept the price of electricity down. Your increased use of electricity has helped, too. The result: In Ohio, electricity is the best bargain in your budget . . . costing less than in 31 other states!

More for a dollar today! How come?

Electricity...a better buy today!

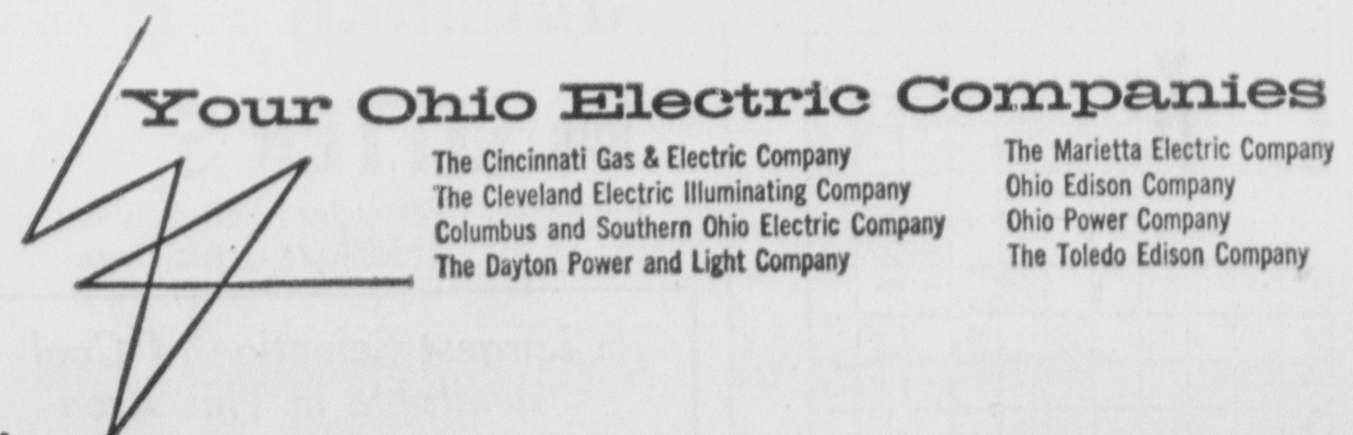

It sounds ridiculous to say that a dollar will buy more of anything today than it did in the 30's—but it's true. In Ohio, it will buy more electricity! If you bought your residential electricity in boxes, you'd be well aware that the amount a dollar buys today is larger than it was in 1935!

The average family is using 5½ times more electricity now, and naturally, your bill is bigger. But thanks to the lower unit cost, your bill hasn't grown in proportion.

What has kept the price of electricity

low in Ohio? Thanks to Ohio's historically favorable business climate, the electric companies have been able to raise the millions needed to make improvements. Through these improvements they have kept the price of electricity down. Your increased use of electricity has helped, too. The result: In Ohio, electricity is the best bargain in your budget . . . costing less than in 31 other states!
